KANSAS CITY (AP) — Former President Harry S. Truman, fighting congested lungs and a weakened heart, remained on the critical list today but medical officials said his condition was

A statement issued at 10 a.m. EST by Research Hospital and Medical Center, where Truman was taken late Tuesday, said: "His age (88) and the potential of sudden change require that he continue to be described as critical."

The statement said Truman's temperature, "somewhat controlled but fluctuating," peaked at 102.8 at midnight. It added that "the major concern is still heart failure."

John Dreves, hospital public relations director, had reported earlier that Truman's vital signs were stable.

The hospital quoted Dr. Wallace Graham, with burial scheduled to be in Truman's personal physician, as saying it was Oakwood Cemetery. "difficult to differentiate ... between induced He is survived by his mother, Icy road conditions on a stretch of road 4.3 miles east of Corsicana on Chambers Creek Bridge resulted in a two-car fatality accident and several other minor accidents this morning, according to investigating Texas Highway Patrolmen Lloyd Allison and Clayton Smith.

Mrs. Lois W. Weaver, 48, of 3009 W. Collin died at 8:45 a.m. at Memorial Hospital following the accident which occurred at about 6:30 a.m., the officers reported.

She was driving alone in the eastbound vehicle when it suddenly spun out on the icy Chambers Creek Bridge, the officers said. A vehicle driven by Clara Stallings Carver, 57, of Rt. 3, Corsicana, collided with the Weaver vehicle, hitting it almost broadside.

Mrs. Carver suffered minor facial injuries and was treated and released at Memorial Hospital. A passenger, Laura Davis, 82, of 1402 W. 12th Ave., was treated and transferred to Hillcrest Hospital in Waco for treatment of compound fractures to the right leg. Another passenger, Bethel Frances Stallings, age 9, of 1402 W. 12th Ave. suffered minor injuries.

The officers said a five-car accident occurred a short distance away in the westbound lane on Chambers Creek Bridge at about 7:40 a.m. today. Only minor damage to the vehicles and no injuries were reported. The vehicles were all traveling at a slow rate of speed when they collided due to the icy road conditions.

Approves Boost in Allowable Income Levels Housing Authority

By ROB MECKEL

Sun Staff Writer Members of the Housing Authority of the City of Corsicana. meeting Thursday night in what could only be described as a semiclosed-door session, passed a resolution (after they had discussed the matter among themselves and decided to begin the public meeting) to increase the income levels for admittance and continued occupancy in public housing units.

Two of the board members, Willard Summerall and Jack Smith, voted against the proposal, and two others, Robert M. (Bob) Scott II and Charles Croft, voted in favor of raising the income levels. Board Chairman C. L. Redus cast the tie-breaking "yes" vote.

The motion to raise income levels was made by Scott and seconded by Croft.

Under the new income levels, the maximum yearly income for an individual applying for housing in a one-bedroom unit is $4.100 as compared to the old maximum of $3,200, and he can continue occupancy as long as his income does not exceed $5,125. The previous maximum amount allowed for continued occupancy was $4,000.

For a two-person family, the income limit for admission goes up maximum of $5,500. The admission level for a three-person family goes up from $3,900 to a maximum of $4,700. The scale of allowable income varies with the number of people in the family.

All the board members, even those who voted in favor of raising the limits, expressed reluctance at having to yield to the demands of the Department of Housing and Urban Development or risk having housing requests turned down.

The board members met at the main dining room of the Holiday Inn shortly after 6 p.m. Thursday. They had agreed at a previous meeting to eat together (expenses paid by Commissioner Summerall) and then begin the meeting at 6:30 p.m. Redus said the meeting rooms were in use by other groups and not available.

The board members, Housing Director Ed Blackburn, and this reporter sat at a large table in the main dining room. The waitress barely had time to take the orders before the board members began discussing the proposed increase for applicant income levels. David Holland of the Matise Property and Management firm of Dallas soon afterward came to the table wanting to attend the meeting. Although a couple of another table" and return at 6:30 p.m. Holland then sat alone at a table until the commissioners officially opened the meeting. Holland noted during his introduction that the Matise firm is considering plans to build a 236 housing project in Corsicana for moderate rather than low income people, to rent for about $120 per

Before Redus declared the meeting officially open, the board members discussed the justification of the proposed increase. As they were talking, F. C. Steward came to the table. He said he came, "as an individual" and not as representative of any group, to learn about the proposed increase.

"Somebody told me it was in the newspapers that it's an open and public meeting," Stewart said. Summerall replied that "It is a public meeting, we were just going to meet 30 minutes earlier and get us a little bite..."

During discussion before the "official" meeting, Stewart said, "I may have the wrong conception of what these housing projects are for. I thought they were for the underprivileged people and people who don't have the money to find nicer places to live." He said there from $3,500 to $4,400, and continued chairs at the table were vacant, is a shortage of "the right type the answer to housing problems is to have individual dwellings people can move into and added that there is already such a program now being sponsored by private people in Corsicana.

Board Member Smith explained problems involved in the proposal. He gave the opinion that if the board should raise the income level it should establish some type of policy to take the people on a "first come, first serve" basis or some other procedure whereby "we would not wind up taking only those people that made more money...'

Blackburn commented that there are presently "a whole lot" of people on the waiting list trying to get housing. He said there are about 40 applicants for onebedroom units, and about 20 persons seeking two-bedroom units.

Smith said the local board has been told by HUD (according to his interpretation that no more units will be approved for construction unless the board raises the level of income requirements).

Also before the "official meeting" began, Redus said "It's my understanding that since this Brook Amendment .. that there has provisions for such low rent payments by low income people that the units could not remain solvent. He said up until two years ago Blackburn kept these units solvent, but the approach now is that since other housing authorities in other cities are going bankrupt, the Nixon administration would like to see them become solvent. To do this, a scale has been set up which allows only three per cent of the lowest income applicants to become tenants, he said. The scale is graduated up to the point where the Authority can be solvent and still accommodate people who need help.

Smith explained that HUD places on the local authority the burden of paying its own operating expenses. He said last year the local Authority did not quite meet expenses so the federal government assisted financially. The board is now confronted with the years. HUD policy of the units being selfsustaining on a month-to-month and year-to-year basis.

Also during discussion, Stewart noted that he has an apartment house with four furnished units which he has rented for over 20 find desirable tenants, but that his meeting table to make a brief Robert Gladney.

be found for the lower income vote on the proposed increase. He said the Brook Amendment people rather than the people who make $4,000 and up per year.

Also during the "unofficial" discussion session, Summerall explained that if the local Authority does not increase the income limits HUD will not authorize construction of 65 units which the local board has applied for—or any units in the future.

Stewart said he objected to this type of pressure and added "I think I would help sponsor a trip to protest a thing like that. It's just not fair to tie these things together."

Redus also commented that the local Housing Authority would income level standards eventually, Corsicana now. even if there were no plans for construction of the "236 Project" indicated this increase would be necessary because incomes and costs of living have gone up in past

DENY CURTAILMENTS

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — Major oil companies Tuesday denied a broadcast report that they planned to curtail retail service in the Midwest because of high cost, competition, and contin ued gasoline price wars.

Television station KUHI of Joplin reported Monday night that up to 12 states could be affected by cutbacks, including Kansas, Oklahoma Arkansas, Nebraska and Iowa.

The station said Gulf already had announced a cutback and that curtailments were planned by Shell, Standard of Indiana, Mobil, and Humble oil com-

Spokesman for the companies in Iowa and Oklahoma also denied any plans to curtail retail

GET 25 YEARS

DALLAS (AP) - Former Dallas policeman John Thomas Singletary and Mrs. Mary Stout were assessed 25-year prison terms Tuesday for the parts they were convicted of playing in the slaying of Mrs. Stout's husband, Bryan Stout.

The all-male jury deliberated almost four hours before returning the sentence against the pair. Both defendants had been found guilty Friday of being accomplices in Stout's murder last June 18.

Defense attorneys said they would appeal the sentences. However, Singletary and Mrs. Stout will remain in the county jail during the appeal process since no appeal bond is allowed for terms over 15 years.

VICTOR CASE HEARD

HOUSTON (AP) - A court hearing continues today in the case of a Negro couple seeking to adopt a 6-year-old Mexican-American boy they have reared for the past four years. Mr. and Mrs. James I

Adams, the couple, are seeking temporary custody and ulti mately adoption of the youth The Harris County Child Welfare Department is opposing The couple charges the welfare unit has denied their plea because they are black and Victor is not. The couple had kept the child in a foster home for the department since 1969. Tuesday a Houston pediatri cian told Juvenile Court Judge Robert L. Lowrey that removing Victor from the Adams' home would be traumatic for the child.

DALLAS (AP) - Texas Gov.electr Dolph Briscoe found his position carried no weight Tuesday with two Dallas policeticket him for parking his car

While attending a meeting, Briscoe was informed that twopolicemen were preparing a ticket for his car. Briscoe told an employe in the building where the meeting was being held to tell the police he would be out shortly. Told to whom the car belonged, the policemen retorted they did not care who owned the car and added that if it was not moved in 10 minutes they were going to ticket it and haul it away. Briscoe reportedly was angered by the incident and can-

Business activity for the first ten months of 1972 in Corsicana was up four per cent over the same period in 1971, and business in October was up six per cent over September, according to the Bureau of Business Research of the University of Texas at

Austin, which prepares a monthly report on 20 selected Texas cities. The month's increase followed a month in which business activity here was down 17 per cent from the August figures (similar to all but Amarillo, which was the only city showing an increase in the monthly activity for September, and that only one per cent). Based on bank debits reported by the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas and adjusted for seasonal variation and changes in the price level by the BBR, the Corsicana figures compare with gains of 12 per cent for the year-to-date and two per cent for the month by Waco, and gains of nine per cent for the year-to-date and losses of five per cent for the month of October by Laredo. Shaded areas on the chart, left, indicate periods of decline of total business activity in the United States.
